Boeckman Road Set to Open to Thru Traffic on May 21

On Wednesday, May 21, the City anticipates re-opening the segment of Boeckman Road that has been closed for more than a year to construct the Boeckman Bridge and a new roundabout at the Canyon Creek Road intersection.

In the remaining days of this initial phase of the Boeckman Road Corridor Project, before the road reopens, crews are completing detail work, including paving, signing and road striping. Once the bridge reopens to two-way thru traffic, only minor lane and sidewalk closures are expected to be necessary.

The completion of the bridge and roundabout are the last of seven major milestones completed during this phase of construction. The project also included road improvements, a sewer extension, the replacement the Meridian Creek culvert, the addition of a temporary Signal at Stafford Road and 65th Street, and construction of a joint utility trench under the bridge to relocate utility lines.

A second phase of the project, scheduled to take place next year, will remove the remaining embankment from the Boeckman dip, and take out the existing culvert and its flow control structure to allow for the restoration of Boeckman Creek beneath the new bridge. This additional work can be completed without complete road closures.

A Grand Opening Event

The City of Wilsonville is hosting a ribbon-cutting celebration to commemorate the completion of this significant infrastructure project, which supports current and future growth in Frog Pond by more safely and efficiently accommodating vehicle, cyclist and pedestrian traffic.

The City invites neighbors and interested community members to attend this free event, on Tuesday, May 20, at 4:30 pm at a stage east of the bridge, west of Painter Dr. The event will feature light refreshments, remarks, a ribbon-cutting, and the first opportunity to traverse the new bridge by foot, on cycles, or via SMART shuttle. Attendees can park at Meridian Creek Middle School and take a SMART shuttle or walk approximately a half-mile to/from the event.

For more information on the Boeckman Road Corridor Improvement Project, including the project benefits, visit wilsonvilleoregon.gov/Boeckman.

A panel of City staff reviewed and judged about 360 photos submitted by community members in the fourth annual #bestofwilsonville photo contest on “Let’s Talk, Wilsonville!”

The panel selected winners in 10 categories; each category winner is to receive a prize.

The grand prize winner, Pierrette Lo, is to receive a $100 gift card from a local retailer of their choice.

A gallery of category winners and honorable mentions can be viewed online at bit.ly/bestphotos25

Grand prize honors in the fourth annual #bestofwilsonville Photo Contest were awarded to Pierrette Lo, who photographed this shot of the Willamette River.

Mayor’s Message

Setting the Right Course for Wilsonville’s Future

In mid-March, I had the privilege of attending a two-day planning session with the City Council and the City’s leadership staff, led by an outside facilitator.

This important exercise, held every two years following the seating of a new Council, is designed to inform the development of two-year Council Goals that guide the work of our City staff.

Our session began with a thorough examination of the current challenges and opportunities facing Wilsonville. We discussed a range of issues, from supply chain delays and economic uncertainties to the local and national political climates and the impending retirements of several key City employees.

One of the most significant changes on the horizon is the retirement of City Manager Bryan Cosgrove, who will conclude his exceptional 15-year tenure this December. While the search for his successor will soon commence, filling the shoes of our City’s chief executive will be no easy task. Bryan has done an exemplary job fostering a service-oriented culture and guiding the efficient delivery of services while advancing Wilsonville’s long-term goals.

As we transitioned into goal-setting, the session provided our first real opportunity as your elected representatives to engage in team-building and gain a deeper understanding of each other’s motivations, communication styles, and priorities. This collaborative effort is essential for moving Wilsonville forward.

Ultimately, we agreed on pursuing goals across four broad fronts:

- Public Health, Safety, and Welfare
- Financial Outcomes
- Communication and Community Engagement
- Parks Maintenance

Within each area, we identified specific goals, such as improving response to potential Code enforcement violations, expanding mental health resources, exploring cost savings and alternative revenue sources, broadening the reach of City communications (especially regarding the Town Center Plan and funding), and maintaining current service levels of park maintenance as new properties come online.

Guided by these goals, which we expect to adopt this month, and rooted in our shared values, I am confident in this Council’s ability to collaborate with staff, listen to the needs of our constituents, and do whatever we can to continue to enhance Wilsonville’s livability for everyone who lives, works, or plays here.

Dump Bulky Waste on June 21

Better late than never, the City’s popular Bulky Waste Day returns on Saturday, June 21, 9 am-1 pm, at Republic Services (10295 SW Ridder Rd.) in Wilsonville.

This year, the City and Republic Services are mitigating challenges in place because of construction taking place on Ridder Rd. to underground a segment of water pipeline. If traffic controls are necessary at this event, additional details will be communicated.

Twice each year, Bulky Waste Day provides Wilsonville residents with an opportunity to conveniently dispose of large or unusual items that cannot be picked up curbside. Proof of residence is required.

In lieu of charging participants, organizers request that participants provide a cash donation on site to support the work of Wilsonville Community Sharing, the community’s local food bank.

Volunteers from the Wilsonville Rotary are picking up bulky waste, by request, from a limited number of residents who wouldn’t otherwise be able to participate. Bulky Waste pickup can be requested online at bit.ly/BW_pickup

For more information, contact Bill Evans at evans@wilsonvilleoregon.gov, 503-570-1502.

Fifth Annual Juneteenth Celebration Set for June 19

Wilsonville’s fifth annual Juneteenth Celebration takes place at Town Center Park on Thursday, June 19, from 5-7:30 pm

Presented by the City’s Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Committee, this community event provides an opportunity for people of all races, nationalities and religions to come together to celebrate our shared humanity and to acknowledge history that continues to influence our society.

Keynote speaker Tai Harden-Moore will speak about the power of the collective in making meaningful societal change.

KMHD’s Bryson Wallace will be spinning music, and several community partners will be on hand to engage and connect with the Wilsonville community.

This free event is being planned and executed by the City’s Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Committee.

This event is made possible with a generous contribution from platinum sponsor Swire Coca-Cola. Oregon Institute of Technology and Clackamas Community College are also providing support.

Juneteenth is believed to be the nation’s oldest nationally-celebrated commemoration of the ending of slavery. In 1866, Texans celebrated the first anniversary of the day word arrived in Galveston on June 19, 1865, that slavery had been abolished. The anniversary is marked by community celebrations throughout the United States.

City Website, E-mail Addresses Have a New Domain

The City of Wilsonville’s website domain and e-mail addresses have changed. What used to be ci.wilsonville.or.us has been replaced with the more intuitive wilsonvilleoregon.gov.

“The wilsonvilleoregon.gov address more clearly and accurately identifies us as Wilsonville’s local government,” said Andy Stone, Director of Information Systems. “It should provide anyone unfamiliar with us the confidence they are dealing with an official City page or representative.”

The ‘.gov’ extension identifies a website as belonging to a U.S. government entity, enhancing trust and credibility by making it easier for people to distinguish official government information from potential scams or misinformation, while also providing additional security features like enforced encryption on all connections to a .gov site.

The change requires no immediate action from community members. For the near-term future, the two addresses can be used interchangeably.

The new wilsonvilleoregon.gov address will appear in City-issued correspondence, including the Boones Ferry Messenger, news releases, e-mail signatures, and other materials.

In accordance with sustainable best practices, the City is only ordering new printed materials — business cards, stationery, etc. — as current supply is exhausted and new supply becomes needed.

“Samurai in the Oregon Sky” Documentary + Q&A on May 1

In 1942, Japanese pilot Nobuo Fujita catapulted his seaplane off of a submarine, flew over the forests of southern Oregon, and conducted the only manned aerial bombings of the United States mainland during WWII.

He never dreamed he would one day be invited back to the region, where he would begin a 35-year friendship with the people of a small Oregon town.

“Many Cultures, One Heart”: 10 Hand-Painted Hearts to be Displayed This Month

Wilsonville’s colorful new public art project, “Many Cultures, One Heart,” arrives this month, when 10 large (4.5-ft x 4.5-ft) fiberglass hearts are installed at parks and public facilities throughout the city.

The hearts, each painted by a different local artist (or artists), will stay on display for the community’s enjoyment for awhile. Afterward, several of the hearts are being auctioned to generate funding for future arts and culture programs.

This unique project was funded through the Wilsonville-Metro Community Enhancement Program, and curated by the City’s Arts, Culture, and Heritage Commission, which reviewed artist applications and selected the featured artists.

While finding each heart shouldn’t be hard, there is an online map available at bit.ly/10hearts_map for those seeking help. Copies are available at City Hall or the Parks and Recreation Administrative Building.

Does Your Emergency Plan Provide for Your Pet?

More than 60% of Americans own a pet — in an emergency, pets rely on us to keep them safe.

This month, Wilsonville Ready offers a few ways to provide for your pets in an emergency planning.

Pack a Pet Emergency Kit

Pets are family. Just like the other members of your household, your pets need emergency kits. We recommend a kit for sheltering at home and a smaller “go bag” to grab quickly in the event of an evacuation. Some essentials include several days of food and water; medications, vaccines, and vet records; a leash and carrier; pet first aid supplies; grooming and sanitation supplies; comfort items (toy, blanket); and a recent photo of your pet with family members

ID Matters in an Emergency

It’s easy for pets to get scared, disoriented, and/or lost in an emergency. Make sure that collars and tags are secure and current, that microchip information is up to date. Having photos of your pets will make it easier to reunite if you get separated.

Plan for Safe Evacuations

When it’s time to evacuate, bring your pets — it’s unsafe for them to be left behind. Staying with friends or family is often the best choice; confirm in advance that they can accommodate your pets. Research pet-friendly shelters and hotels ahead of time, and plan how you’ll safely transport them. A more tailored plan will be needed for owners of livestock or non-traditional pets like reptiles or birds.

Ensure Pets are Safe if You’re Away

You might not be home during an emergency. Select a trusted neighbor, nearby family member, or friend to care for your pets in your absence. They should have a spare key to your home, know where your pet’s emergency kit is, and be able to evacuate your pets if needed.

Finally, emergencies can be stressful for animals. To help them stay calm, keep pets leashed, contained, and close by. Be patient if they change their behavior and give them time adapt to new surroundings.

Mayor’s State of the City Address to Be Delivered at City Hall May 5

Wilsonville Mayor Shawn O’Neil is scheduled to give his first State of the City address at the regular meeting of the City Council on Monday, May 5, at 7 pm.

O’Neil’s address is to be informed by a recent two-day City Council work session, March 14-15, to identify the Council’s two-year goals. At the session, the Council spent considerable time with the City’s executive staff discussing existing political and financial climate, technology, customer needs, and uncertainties related to the global economy, cost of construction, and supply chain challenges.

Specific goals were identified under four broad themes: Public Health, Safety and Welfare; Financial Outcomes; Communication/Community Engagement; Parks Maintenance.

The 2025-2027 Council goals, which will be adopted at an upcoming City Council meeting, guide City staff with actionable goals to complete over the next two years.

The State of the City address is streamed on the City’s YouTube channel and broadcast on public television (Xfinity Ch. 30, Ziply Ch. 32) for those interested but unable to attend.

City’s Long-time Policy Expert to Retire This Month

For 17 years, the City of Wilsonville has relied upon the behind-the-scenes expertise of Mark Ottenad, its Public and Governmental Affairs Director, who is retiring on May 30.

Nobody at City Hall is more aware of how policy proposed or enacted at any level of government may impact Wilsonville. For years, he’s helped the Mayor and City Council better understand and advocate for the community’s needs.

“Mark is one of the smartest, hardest-working individuals I’ve ever been around,” City Manager Bryan Cosgrove said. “He somehow manages to keep all the balls in the air and always gives more than what’s asked of him. We have some big shoes to fill.”

By being acutely aware of how and where State and regional policy goals are in alignment with Wilsonville’s interests, Ottenad has helped the City win several legislative awards during his tenure, including a $1.9 million award from House Representative Courtney Neron to fund ground-floor amenities — including a permanent home for Wilsonville Community Sharing — at Vuela, the 121-unit residential complex under construction near the Wilsonville Transit Center.

As his tenure winds down, he is working with legislators to acquire $3.5 million in State funding to construct infrastructure serving the Frog Pond East and South urban-expansion areas.

“Mark is a master at understanding the complex issues and intergovernmental relationships that Wilsonville must navigate daily,” said lobbyist Greg Leo, a legislative consultant for the City.

Among countless legislative successes, Ottenad helped Wilsonville secure $1.4 million for the Sherwood/Wilsonville broadband expansion project and an $800,000 federal earmark to fund the extension of Tooze Rd. to connect to Villebois.

Additionally, his work has helped push the I-5 Boone Bridge Seismic Replacement Project higher on the State’s list for major road improvements, supported the protection of the French Prairie Rural Reserve, and stalled the attempts by the Oregon Dept. of Aviation to proceed with a planned expansion of Aurora State Airport without engaging in a public process.

During his tenure, Ottenad also helped lead multi-departmental efforts that yielded City Council-adopted plans for an economic development strategy (2012), a tourism development strategy (2014), and an arts, culture and heritage strategy (2020).

Ottenad credits Wilsonville’s legislative successes to the credible reputation the City has established with lawmakers and jurisdictions throughout Oregon.

“We’re exceptionally consistent. We don’t vacillate and change our minds all the time, which has helped to establish that credibility,” Ottenad said. “Additionally, Wilsonville has been an exceptionally well-managed city, and so we have been able to accomplish many developments and projects in a responsible manner that has won the respect of legislators and policy makers.”

Ottenad served five years as the executive director of the Wilsonville Chamber of Commerce for more than four years (2003-2008) before coming to City Hall. Few know the City better.

While retirement frees up his days to pursue more outdoor recreation and to provide care for his parents, Ottenad said he’ll miss working with City colleagues.

His parting wish for Wilsonville, he says, is the realization of the Town Center Plan.

“The City’s biennial community survey and our Tourism Development Strategy both point to residents’ and visitors’ desire for an improved Town Center that is walkable and has nice shops and dining opportunities.”

W.E.R.K. Day and Goat Petting, May 10

W.E.R.K. Day is back on Saturday, May 10. This annual volunteer park clean-up outing includes a complimentary breakfast, 8-9 am at the Wilsonville Community Center, courtesy of the Wilsonville Rotary Club.

After breakfast, volunteers complete projects at Memorial Park, such as bark dusting and invasive species removal, from 9 to 11 am.

Goat petting is offered during and after the event, from 10 am until noon, near the Stein-Boozier Barn. The goats, contracted through “Go Goat LLC.” are doing work of their own for two weeks in May by eating their way through invasive blackberry.

Pre-registration is encouraged. Volunteers receive a $10 fun card to Buillwinkles. Register at WilsonvilleParksandRec.com using course #11282. No registration is needed for the goat petting event.

Pickleball Clinics Begin in May!

A variety of pickleball clinics will begin at the Wilsonville Memorial Park pickleball courts beginning in May. Taught by instructor Jeff Taber, Certified Pickleball Instructor and Wilsonville local, these clinics are designed for beginners to experienced (3.25+) players. Each clinic is 2-hours, costs $75 and all equipment is provided. Beginner Clinics will be held from 11 am-1 pm and Experienced Player Clinics from 1-3 pm on the following Saturdays (pre-registration is required): May 17 & 24, June 21 & 28, July 19, and Aug. 16. Each clinic is capped at 8 players. Register at WilsonvilleParksandRec.com/Register and use keyword search 'pickleball'.

How to Identify and Stop Credit, Debit Card Skimming Fraud

There is no end to the type of fraud and scams we need to be aware of. One is “skimming,” a form of credit or debit card fraud.

Skimming is the act of installing hidden electronic devices to record cardholder information at ATMs and Point-of-Sale (POS) terminals. It occurs frequently at pharmacies, gas stations, and grocery stores.

Criminals are able to use your stolen (skimmed) debit or credit card data by re-encoding it on other cards for unauthorized ATM withdrawals or high-end purchases, or they may sell batches of stolen data to other groups.

Skimming crimes account for hundreds of millions of dollars in losses annually to consumers, businesses, and financial institutions.

While we do take reports of skimming fraud, the United States Secret Service is the lead agency tasked with investigating access device fraud. When evidence leads us to a suspect locally, we work with our federal partners.

How it Works

ATM skimming devices are typically inserted deep inside the card read slot, making them difficult or impossible to detect. While ATM manufacturers are constantly developing security features to combat skimmers, these criminals are always adapting and changing their methods to deploy these devices.

To limit your risk of becoming an ATM skimming victim:

Police Chief Rob Wurpes

- Utilize ATMs inside of financial institutions, interior bays with security cameras, or closest to the drive-up window. These ATMs are more difficult targets for criminals.
 - Look for obvious signs of tampering at the ATM, such as inoperable/broken lights, raised PIN pads or loose edges, loose components or stickers placed in unusual locations.
 - Always shield your PIN entry with another hand as much as possible to prevent your PIN from being recorded by a “pin-hole” camera.
- At retail establishments, skimming devices are typically overlays covering the top exterior of the point of service terminal, or just the keypad and EMV reader slot. These devices can be difficult to detect because criminals design plastic overlay shells that look identical to the top of the POS terminal and fit securely on the terminal.
- These devices can capture data on your magnetic stripe and your card’s EMV chip. Overlay devices also capture all keypad entries, including PIN numbers, if a debit card is used.
- To limit your risk of becoming a POS terminal skimming victim:
- Stay alert for obvious signs of tampering. Gently pull up on the corners of the terminal or the keypad’s privacy shroud. If any part of the terminal appears or feels loose, do not use this terminal and bring it to the attention of the merchant.
 - Some merchants use seals on the sides of the POS terminals instead of a debit card to avoid potentially compromising your PIN and giving

- criminals access to your checking account.
- Consider using a credit card at POS terminals instead of a debit card to avoid potentially compromising your PIN and giving criminals access to your checking account.
 - Consider making purchases using cards that can transact through contactless payment (i.e. tap-to-pay) or with the card’s EMV chip, instead of the magnetic strip.
- If you believe you are the victim of fraud, immediately contact your card issuer’s fraud department to report the incident, deactivate the card, and request a new card with a new PIN. Monitor the account closely. If you suffer a financial loss, consider filing a fraud affidavit with the card issuer and contact us to report the incident.

W.E.R.K. Day Park Cleanup Event to Honor Earth Day

Earth Day, observed annually on April 22 since 1970, encourages everyone to take part in the movement to protect our planet. This global event is dedicated to environmental activism, education, and coalition building.

Join the celebration in Wilsonville on Saturday, May 10, at the W.E.R.K. Day volunteer park clean up event in Memorial Park, 9-11 am. This year’s theme is “Our Power, Our Planet;” attendees can engage with exhibitors focused on renewable energies, climate literacy, and helping individuals reduce their carbon footprint.

WERK Day volunteers support the health of our community as stewards of our parks and open spaces. This event supports their hard work by providing family-friendly activities, prizes, and refreshments in celebration of their environmental action.

A History of Earth Day

The first Earth Day celebration was organized by Wisconsin Senator Gaylord Nelson in response to growing concerns about offshore pollution. Nelson was inspired by the student anti-war protests of the 1960s and wanted to create a national day to shine a spotlight on pressing environmental issues. Nelson persuaded Pete McCloskey, a conservation-minded Republican Congressman from California, to serve as his co-chair. Their work established a monument to environmentalism.

About 20 million people across the United States participated in rallies, cleanups, and teach-ins on the first Earth Day in 1970, making it the largest grassroots environmental movement of its time. Earth Day achieved a rare political alignment, enlisting support from Republicans and Democrats, rich and poor, urban dwellers and farmers, business, and labor leaders.

Groups that had been fighting individually against a suite of environmental issues united on Earth Day around a shared common value. Their collective response helped catalyze the modern environmental movement, aiding in the establishment of the Environmental Protection Agency and the passing of groundbreaking legislation, including the Clean Air Act, the Clean Water Act, and the Endangered Species Act.

Today, Earth Day is celebrated worldwide, with millions of people participating in events aimed at raising awareness about climate change, deforestation, pollution, biodiversity loss and other issues.

The Westside Reservoir on Tooze Rd. is on schedule to be completed this summer.

Road Resurfacing Scheduled to Take Place This Month on Tooze Rd.

Soon, the City will complete work to repave the portions of Tooze Rd. impacted by the undergrounding of a new water transmission main to feed the Westside Reservoir. The work is expected to begin on May 5 and continue for about two weeks.

The work area begins at the intersection of Tooze Rd. and Westfall Rd. and continues north on Tooze to the reservoir site (12771 SW Tooze Rd.).

During construction, traffic will be limited to one lane for the duration of the work, with flaggers scheduled to be present around the clock to safely direct vehicles. Paving activities will be limited to daytime work hours.

Work will begin at the south end of the project area, and continue north along SW Tooze Rd. Any updates to the work schedule or traffic impacts will be posted at wilsonvilleoregon.gov/reservoir as necessary.

The Westside Reservoir Project, on schedule to be commissioned in July, includes a new 3-million-gallon concrete reservoir, and approximately 3,000 linear feet of 24-inch diameter finished water transmission main.

The reservoir has been built to seismic and contemporary operating standards, and provides the community with additional water for everyday use and emergencies. The project site offers space for additional water system improvements to support future need.

For more information, contact Mike Nacrelli, senior civil engineer, at 503-570-1540 or mnacrelli@wilsonvilleoregon.gov.

City Council to Consider Adoption of Housing Our Future Project in June

The Housing Our Future project, which ensures compliance with State housing planning goals, inventories the City’s buildable residential land and details actions that could be taken over the next six years in a Housing Production Strategy (HPS) to support local housing needs.

Once adopted, the project’s Housing Needs and Capacity Analysis (HNCA) will replace the 2014 Wilsonville Residential Land Study as the City’s guiding document for housing planning. The HNCA estimates the City’s ability to support anticipated household growth over the next 20 years and identifies unmet housing need in Wilsonville.

- On Wednesday, May 14, at 6 pm, the Planning Commission is holding a public hearing to consider whether to recommend adoption of the HNCA and the HPS to the City Council.
- On Monday, June 2, at 7 pm, the City Council is scheduled to hold a public hearing to consider the plan’s adoption if it is recommended by the Planning Commission.

Hygiene Product Drive with WMCC Provides Welcome Support

This year, the City of Wilsonville and Wilsonville Muslim Community Center (WMCC) collaborated on a hygiene product collection throughout March to aid neighbors in need of these items.

A key component during the observance of Ramadan is mindfulness about the importance of charity and giving back. Members of the Muslim community seek to make a positive impact on the lives of others through acts of kindness, compassion, and generosity.

All items collected by the City and the WMCC were dropped at Wilsonville Community Sharing to be distributed as needed. The City and the WMCC are grateful for the community’s support.

Good Everyday Choices Can Improve Your Heart Health

Tualatin Valley Fire & Rescue cares about the health of the people it serves. This month, TVF&R is encouraging people to overcome stress and serious illnesses by embracing healthy habits that support a higher quality of life.

Taking a few easy steps can jumpstart a heart-healthy lifestyle.

- Enlist a partner: Talk to loved ones, neighbors, and friends and invite them to participate in physical activities, share a balanced meal, and have a fun adventure. Everyday activities are always more fun with a partner — someone who will keep you company, inspire you to stick with a new routine, and encourage you on your health journey.
- Fuel your body: Eating balanced meals helps the body fight off sickness and recover more quickly when sick. Drink plenty of water. Enjoy fruits and vegetables throughout the day as snacks, toppings, side dishes, or with your main meal. A healthy diet also includes whole grains, fat-free or low-fat dairy products, lean meats, fish, beans, eggs, and nuts. Limit saturated fats, trans fats, cholesterol, salt, and added sugars.
- Get moving: Be active, every day. As little as 30 minutes of exercise a day can help keep the body fit to fight off illness and prevent injuries. Simple exercises can be done at home; consult a physician to see what exercises will provide the most benefit. Carving out time to exercise has been shown to increase energy, reduce health risks,

- lower stress, improve mood, and boost productivity. Regular physical activity is important for overall health and fitness, and can also be a great source of fun.
- Get enough sleep: Physical activity can improve the quality of sleep. Six to eight hours of sleep each night is recommended to re-charge your mind and body.
 - Ditch bad habits: Limit alcohol and caffeine consumption, and quit smoking. Set healthy goals and celebrate when you achieve them.
 - Team up with your doctor: Doctors can help with prevention, screening, and treatment. Don’t wait for illness; doctors can provide preventative care and/or diagnose problems early. Ask your doctor to check your blood pressure and cholesterol numbers.
- Good everyday choices improve the odds of fending off serious illnesses and also pave the way for a happier, healthier life.
- For more information about adopting a heart-healthy lifestyle, visit tvfr.com.

Notable Actions: City Boards and Commissions

City Council	Action	What it Means
Apr. 7	The City Council adopted a pair of resolutions to support tourism development: a Tourism Development Strategy and a 2025-26 Five-Year Action Plan and Annual One-Year Implementation Plan that spells out one-year goals.	Tourism development generates revenue for the City by increasing Wilsonville’s transient lodging tax revenue.

Engagement 101: How to Be More Aware, Involved in Your Local Government

Life — families, jobs, hobbies, social events and unexpected turns — puts many at the mercy of local government to act in their best interest.

Alas, government entities can only consider the needs of those who engage. When the public input received doesn’t represent the interests of the broader community, a city’s work can be ineffective.

Wilsonville’s staff and elected officials are good listeners who do their best work to serve the community when more residents are informed, engaged and willing to provide input on proposed projects and programs.

Below are a few ways to become better educated about the City’s work and to make your voice heard:

Sign Up to Receive City News Releases: All news releases are posted on the City’s website (wilsonvilleoregon.gov). We also e-mail them directly to ‘City News’ subscribers. There is no cost to sign up. Visit wilsonvilleoregon.gov/subscribe Follow Us on Facebook, NextDoor, Instagram: News and events are shared on our social media channels. Give us a follow!

Attend/Watch Public Meetings: City Council meetings and work sessions, which typically occur on the 1st and 3rd Monday of the month, are open to the public, and also streamed live on YouTube and local cable providers (Xfinity & Ziplly). To watch and/or subscribe to the City’s YouTube Channel, visit: youtube.com/CityofWilsonvilleOR Review Meeting Agendas and Materials: Visit wilsonvilleoregon.gov/meetings to see a schedule of past and upcoming meetings. Before each meeting, agendas, staff reports and other materials presented to City Council are posted online.

Join “Let’s Talk, Wilsonville!”: The City’s two-way citizen engagement hub details many current project. When public input is needed, surveys, polls and/or forums are posted. Subscribers receive periodic e-mails encouraging them to weigh in on projects. Visit LetsTalkWilsonville.com.

Comment at a Public Meeting: Residents can speak directly to the City Council or other City boards during scheduled public hearings or the period of citizen input at the beginning of each meeting. Residents can address the Council for three minutes on any topic. E-mail cityrecorder@wilsonvilleoregon.gov to learn more.

E-mail Your City Councilors Directly: E-mail addresses for each City Councilor are provided on the back page of every issue of the Boones Ferry Messenger and on the City website.

Join the Civics Academy: Each fall, the City recruits residents to participate in a free six-month program that provides an overview of local government. One evening a month, participants hear presentations from City staff and elected officials about different aspects of the City’s operation. Learn more at wilsonvilleoregon.gov/academy

Serve on a City Board or Commission: Cities rely on resident volunteers to provide oversight of critical functions, including Planning, Budgeting, Library Services, Park and Recreation Services and more. Applications are accepted year-round. Visit wilsonvilleoregon.gov/apply to learn more or apply.

Future Wilsonville: Two Areas Poised for Development

groundwork | noun | graund-werk
- a foundation; basis
- work that is done as a preparation for work that will be done later

Challenges are also opportunities, and Wilsonville is laying the groundwork for long-term growth in two of the city’s most visible development areas.

Basalt Creek Area is on Deck

In the Basalt Creek Planning Area, which includes 150 buildable acres north of the Coffee Creek Correction Facility, the City has launched the Wilsonville Industrial Land Readiness (WILR) Project. This work, aided by the support of ECONorthwest, prepares this area for future job-generating development. This project will deliver clear policies, zoning updates, and an Economic Development Strategy that positions the area — and the City — for thoughtful, market-ready growth. Expect these changes to be presented to the City Council for adoption in late 2025. In the meantime, we’re engaging regularly with landowners, developers, and partners to ensure the outcomes align with market needs and community goals.

Former Fry’s Property Back on Market

Everyone’s favorite local mystery — “What’s going on with the Fry’s property?” — is now a little less mysterious. After a multi-year land use process, Home Depot’s effort to reuse the former Fry’s site was ultimately denied because it did not comply with local land use regulations, a decision upheld by both the Land Use Board of Appeals and the Oregon Court of Appeals. The site is now officially back on the market.

The City does not own or control the property, so development proposals on the site will be driven by the private market. Any future redevelopment will be guided by zoning rules established with the passage of the 2019 Town Center Plan, which envisions a more walkable, mixed-use district. Wilsonville is always looking toward tomorrow, so its future takes shape thoughtfully. Exciting things are sure to come to these two areas when economic conditions allow. Stay tuned to this space to learn more. Visit LetsTalkWilsonville.com to let us know what topics you’d like to hear more about. Resident Establishes May 3 Mental Health Fair to Commemorate Dammasch State Hospital Closure

Turning Darkness into Light, a mental health fair commemorating the 30th anniversary of the closing of Dammasch State Hospital, takes place on Saturday, May 3, from noon to 3 pm at the Villebois Piazza. The event is being organized and hosted by Wilsonville resident Tabi Traughber’s newly-established non-profit, Resilience Events, to build connections and to support the mental health and well-being of Wilsonville and its residents. Mayor Shawn O’Neil will kick off the event by formally recognizing May as Mental Health Awareness Month in Wilsonville. “Mental health/illness impacts all walks of life,” Traughber said. “We are looking to connect with youth, seniors, families, underprivileged, persons with disabilities and really anyone that walks by and/or intentionally joins the event.” This family-friendly event features guest speakers and performance artists, as well as food trucks, Kona Ice, bounce houses, art therapy stations and interactive booths. Mental health agencies and affiliates are providing resources, as well as referral services. Local sponsors, vendors and self-care organizations are also represented. Speakers will address issues related to mental health, mental illness, and the history of Dammasch, which operated from 1961-1995 at a location that is

Inspired by her own experiences, including losing her sister and others to suicide, Traughber intends to turn this occasion into an annual event. This effort builds upon recent work to advance mental health awareness as 2024’s “Mrs. Wilsonville” at the Mrs. Oregon America, through service on the National Alliance on Mental Illness (NAMI) Clackamas Board since 2022, and as a NAMIWalks captain since losing her sister in 2011. City Council Adopts Tourism Strategy

In April, The City Council adopted a new Tourism Development Strategy that articulates a vision for the tourism-promotion program and identifies nine broad objectives and nearly 40 strategies to help attract visitors to Wilsonville. Tourism supports local businesses and generates revenue for the City. This Strategy guides the City’s work over the next 10 years to become a more attractive destination for visitors. Broad objectives include increasing local access to the Willamette River, attracting and nurturing impactful events, and investing in development of the Town Center. Concurrently, an updated Five-Year Action Plan and Annual One-Year Implementation Plan were adopted by the Council to guide shorter-term marketing activities, which the City handles in partnership with Tacoma-based JayRay. The award-winning ExploreWilsonville.com website, a centerpiece of the City’s tourism marketing plan, highlights several area restaurants, attractions and itineraries for visitors (and locals, too!) to discover and enjoy.

Commercial Pesticide Collection Event to be Held on May 17

The Clackamas Soil and Water Conservation District, Clackamas River Water Providers, and Oregon Department of Agriculture are hosting a free pesticide collection Event on Saturday, May 17, in Clackamas. Interested parties must pre-register for an appointment to ensure that organizers have the right containers and safety gear ready to safely handle the pesticides. Register by May 5 at conservationdistrict.org. This event provides an opportunity for producers, forest landowners, and other commercial and industrial pesticide users to get rid of old, restricted, or no longer used pesticides, surfactants, and adjuvants anonymously, and at no cost. No fertilizers, solvents, or other non-pesticide materials will be accepted. Because limited slots are available, early sign up is encouraged. To inquire about availability after the May 5 deadline or get additional information, contact Michael Mason of Clean Harbor Environmental Services, 971-401-0367, mason.michaelr@cleanharbors.com.

City Celebrates Pride Month on June 7 with New Mural, Reception

In June, the City is once again recognizing Pride Month with a temporary mural on the glass exterior of the Parks and Recreation Administration Building (29600 SW Park Place) and a community celebration.

The celebration takes place on Saturday, June 7, from 2-4 pm at the site of the mural.

The mural provides visual representation to uplift, recognize and celebrate members of Wilsonville’s LGBTQIA+ community. It will remain visible throughout Pride Month.

This celebration is a collaboration between the City’s Arts, Culture, and Heritage Commission (ACHC) and its Diversity, Equity and Inclusion (DEI) Committee.

“The mural and celebration of Pride Month are intended to help ensure that everyone who lives, works, or goes to school in Wilsonville feels welcome here,” said Erika Valentine, the City’s arts and culture program coordinator.

Pride Month Celebration + Mural Reception
Sat, June 7, 2-4 pm
Town Center Park

The City is distributing a limited-edition Wilsonville Pride pin at the event, which features light refreshments, a speaker, and community building.

The ACHC initiated a call for artists, and selected a local artist to design and paint the Pride Month mural. The mural, and more information about the artist, will be featured in the June issue of the Boones Ferry Messenger.

Pride celebrations first took place in June 1970 to commemorate the first anniversary of the Stonewall riots, a series of gay liberation protests that took place 1969. LGBTQIA+ Pride Month has been celebrated more formally in the United States since 1999, when a presidential declaration officially recognized Pride Month.

DEI Speakers Series Explores Oregon’s Rich Jewish History

The City’s Diversity, Equity and Inclusion (DEI) Speaker Series continues on Tuesday, May 20, at 6 pm at the Wilsonville Library (8200 SW Wilsonville Rd.)

The featured speaker is Judy Margles, retired CEO of the Oregon Jewish Museum and Center for Holocaust Education.

Her engaging, illustrated talk journeys through time — from the Gold Rush to today — exploring how Jewish immigrants built their lives, established communities, and made a lasting impact on Oregon’s social, economic, and political landscape.

Judy Margles

DEI Speakers Series events are free, and include light refreshments.

Established and curated by the City’s Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Committee, the series provides a forum for open discussion on topics critical to understanding the lived experience of historically marginalized community members.

Previous DEI Speaker Series events are available for viewing on the City’s YouTube channel. Visit bit.ly/DEI_Speakers
