

T Rex Day

Once upon a time, there was two little boys that were Hank and Clyde and they were walking through the woods then they saw a tiny little monster, actually it was a big monster actually. It was a T rex! And they were running away and a flying thing—a bird— picked them up. Then a pterodactyl picked them up and took them to their house. And they were having fun in the backyard but the backyard didn't look like a backyard because it had a playground. And they went on to their deck but there wasn't nothing on their deck. All the chairs were on the backyard and they were sitting on them and then they went to a different house that was far away. And then they didn't know how to get back. And the pterodactyl picked them up and took them back to their house. The End.